SOCIAL AND PERSONAL

Purple attar of the May. Purple attar of the May,
Luring languor, brooding breath
Of an Oriental day;
Rapt distillment of the dawn
That too quickly vanisheth,
With its gold and pink and fawn,
Who can wonder that the thrush,
Perched amid your drooping plumes,
Pours its soul-note exquisite—
Filings its golden music-gush
From the girdling pale-green glooms
Out on the enamored light?

Haunting essence of a five Hidden in the heart of earth, Flowering of a white desire After winter's penury— After we and wasting dearth— After wee and wasting
You are opulence to me!
You are opulence to me!
You are largess—love's own song
(Ardor held in sweet duress).
Conjured into blossoming;
Sunlight-long and moonlight-long,
Till you fade in nothingness.
Do you sing and sing and sing!
—Clinton Scollard.

McGuire—McCormick.

A wedding in which an unusual amount of interest is felt by Richmond society people, many of whem are relatives of the contracting parties took place at 7 o'clock last evening in 8t. James Episcopal Church, Berryville, when the nuptials of Miss Margaretta, McCormick, daughter of the Hon. Marshall McCormick, to Mr. Charles Fenton McGuire, of Hobeken, New Jersey, were celebrated by the Rev. Mr. Walls, the rector of the church.

The color scheme of the wedding was developed in pink, church decorations being in apple blossoms and the bridal party passing under arches of the blossoms lighted with pink and white wax tapers on their way to the altar.

The four ushers—Mr. Palmer Campbell, of New York; Dr. McKenzie, of Newark; Mr. Adams and Mr. Arthur Johns, of New York—led the way, fellowed by little Misses Hallie McCormick, sister, and Lucy Harrison, cousin of the bride, carrying baskets of pink tulips and wearing pretty white frocks.

The bridesmalds—Miss Rosalle and Miss Gertrude McCormick—came next, in white lingerie gowns, trimmed with lace, and worn with pompadour sashes and wreathings of pink roses. Their flowers were pink tulips.

FLOWER LIFE.

By HENRY TIMROD.

"The Sibyl Leaves" were prophetic books which a celebrated fortune-teller of antique Rome offered to King Tarquin. He refused the best of them, but finally accepted three, for which he paid as much as she asked for the original nine. These books were consulted in times of trouble, and a special body of men had charge of them. They were addentally burned in the time of Sylla.

They were addentally burned in the time of Sylla.

Other selections from this author, his portrait, autograph and biographical sketch, have already been printed in this series.

THINK that, next to your sweet eyes, And pleasant books, and starry skies, I love the world of flowers; Less for their beauty of a day Than for the tender things they say, And for a creed I've held alway That they are sentient powers.

It may be matter for a smile-And I laugh secretly the while I speak the fancy out-But that they love, and that they woo, And that they often marry, too, And do as noisier creatures do, I've not the faintest doubt.

And so, I cannot deem it right To take them from the glad sunlight, As I have sometimes dared; Though not without an anxious sigh Lest this should break some gentle tie, Some covenant of friendship, I Had better far have spared.

And when, in wild or thoughtless hours, My hand has crushed the tiniest flowers, I ne'er could shut from sight The corpses of the tender things, With other drear imaginings, And little angel flowers with wings Would haunt me through the night.

O! say you, friend, the creed is fraught Nor could you bear to know That such capacities belong To creatures helpless against wrong, At once too weak to fly the strong Or front the feeblest foe?

So be it always, then, with you: So be it-whether false or true-I press my faith on none; If other fancies please you more, The flowers shall blossom as before, Dear as the sibyl leaves of yore, But senseless, every one.

Yet, though I give you no reply, It were not hard to justify My creed to partial ears; But conscious of the cruel part, My rhymes would flow with faltering art, I could not plead against your heart, Nor reason with your tears.

Musicale Great Success.

The Oriental Musicale given Tuesday evening in the home of Mrs. R. T. Hunter. No. 215 East Franklin Street, by the Loving Circle of King's Daughters, of which Mrs. T. William Pemberton was chairman, was a great success.

The parlors and halls, where the company was gathered, were most effectively decorated in cherry blossoms, plak and white roses, sweet peas and white lilacs, and lighted with gayly colored Japanese lanterns suspended from the srill work in the hall, the chandeliers in the parlors and depending in a fringe from the framing of doorways.

Lamps with Oriental designs in shades and Eastern rugs added to the realism of the scene. A little table where bombons were disposed of was placed in a recess of the hall beneath a Japanese umbrella, and was presided over by a pretty girl in an Oriental costume.

Miss Preston Womack, in an extremely hecoming Japanese kimona, and with her hair arranged in Eastern style, was treasurer of the evening.

Mrs. D. T. Williams, as chairman of the refreshment committee, was assisted in serving dainty refreshments by Mrs. Arthur Cannon. Miss Louise Stacy, Miss Emily Waddill and Miss Dolly Smoot, all attired as Japanese maldens.

An excellent programme, varied with vocal selections, from Messrs. Percy Pemberton, George Morgan, Dr. Thomas D. Merrick, Mr. Dumbar, Mr. Phillips. Miss Brent and Mrs. Webster, accompanied by Miss Mary Willie Smoot: with several numbers from the Y. M. C. A. Mandolin and Guttar Club, and recitations from Mr. Ryan and Miss Neal, was enthusiastically received. The audience was excellent and the affair a delightful success.

Will Likely Take Place in Academy Early Next Week.

A matter of consuming, interest among both the Montague and Martin followers in richmond is, "When will the Governor hold his public rally here?" The question is asked in almost every group, and there is every indication that there will be a good house to welcome the Governor.

While the arrangements have not been completed, nor the date definitely fixed, it is likely that the rally will take place in the Academy either Tuesday or Thursday night of next week.

The list of vice-prosidents is now being made up, and it is said it will embrace representative men in the party of all classos. Professional laboring and business men will be among them, so those in charge are saying.

The Governor will be introduced by some strong friend, who is a good talker, and who enjoys the esteem and confidence of all the people of Richmond.

Takes a Different View.

State Senator J. Lawrence Campboll, of Bedford country, who has been in the city two days, left yesterday for his home. Mr. Campboll presided at the Martin meeting at Bedford City Monday, and expressed surprise at some of the newspaper reports emanating from that place. He stated that he was confident from careful inquiry that fully four-lifths of those present at Bedford court were for Senator Martin for re-election. He further said that the court day crowd was the largest with possibly one exception, since the old country court system was abolished. Mr. Campboll stated emphatically that whatever the sentiment of the county may be the crowd attending court Monday was overwhelmingly for the senator's re-election. Takes a Different View.
